We all know the story and hopefully we personally all know the implications of Easter. In the account of Jesus' death and resurrection we see our own life story; the past, present and future of our own mortality and resurrection. I have spoken to this in numerous newsletters.

This month, I would like to highlight how rural people historically have had insights into the Easter that those raised in cities have not had because of their lack of dependency on nature for provision and their distance from the cycles of death and birth in crops and livestock in general. I will be succinct for the sake of brevity: the arrival of seed catalogues, the arrival of chicks to the small town post office, the birth of livestock in the spring particularly the arrival of lambs.

When archeologists thought they'd discovered Saint Peter's home, confirmation of the veracity of their conclusions was the presence of a large number of egg shells found on the property indicative of the meeting of the first Christians for worship at his house and the tradition of eating eggs symbolizing the weekly tradition of celebrating Christ's resurrection (the chick breaking out of the tomb of a seemingly dead egg). God uses nature to as a metaphor/reminder of deeper spiritual truths. I pass on the following excellent summary of the symbolism and significance of lambs from Wikipedia:

"Easter is linked to the Passover and Exodus from Egypt recorded in the Old Testament through the Last Supper, sufferings and crucifixion of Jesus that preceded the resurrection. According to the New Testament, Jesus gave the Passover meal a new meaning, as in the upper room during the Last Supper he prepared himself and his disciples for his death. He identified the matzah and cup of wine as his body soon to be sacrificed and his blood soon to be shed. Paul states, "Get rid of the old yeast that you may be a new batch without yeast—as you really are. For Christ, our Passover lamb, has been sacrificed"; this refers to the Passover requirement to have no yeast in the house and to the allegory of Jesus as the Paschal lamb. One interpretation of the Gospel of John is that Jesus, as the Passover lamb, was crucified at roughly the same time as the Passover lambs were being slain in the temple, on the afternoon of Nisan 14. The scriptural instructions specify that the lamb is to be slain "between the two evenings", that is, at twilight. By the Roman period, however, the sacrifices were performed in the mid-afternoon. Josephus, Jewish War 6.10.1/423 ("They sacrifice from the ninth to the eleventh hour"). Philo, Special Laws 2.27/145 ("Many myriads of victims from noon till eventide are offered by the whole people")."

Christ was the lamb of God, the paschal lamb, the unblemished one given for the remission of your sins, my sins and for the sins of the world.

As you think back to your story or even perhaps to the stories your parents and grandparents told of growing up on a farm, collecting eggs from the hen house, watching new life spring up from well tilled earth and seeing woolly lambs jumping in the pasture you have experiential insights that can deepen the spiritual significance of Easter day, the season of Easter and indeed every Sunday, which according to Martin Luther, is a little Easter. I leave you with a poem by Anne Campbell (Detroit News, March 26, 1948):

The world is ready for the Spring,
The winter has been long and cold.
The birds will soon fly home to sing
Of April glories they behold.
The world has need of Eastertide.
It has been plunged in Lenten gloom.
But now upon the countryside,
The bashful crocuses will bloom.

May you and your have a blessed Easter season,

Pastor Bruce

Thank you to everyone who helped make it a success. This annual event has been a real crowd pleaser for decades and this year was no exception!

April Fool's Day is celebrated throughout the Western World. How it began is the subject of many interesting theories, but it is indeed a happy day of fun that was well established and celebrated throughout Europe centuries ago.

The first record of this silly celebration may be found in the Canterbury Tales, written by Geoffrey Chaucer in 1392. Some scholars dispute this. However there is no doubt about a poem written in 1591 by Dutch writer about a landowner who sent his servant on a set of crazy errands on April 1st.

What is certain is that April Fool's Day falls at the time of year when many ancient cultures, including the Romans, celebrated spring with light-hearted festivals, full of spoofs and jokes that reflected the joy of a new year.

In 1582, when Pope Gregory XIII replaced the Julian calendar with his new and improved Gregorian version. The Gregorian calendar declared that New Year's Day would be on January 1st. Under the Julian calendar, the new year began around the time of the spring equinox in late March. Many traditionalists refused to accept the change, celebrating New Year's on April 1. Those who embraced the new calendar saw April 1st as a day of foolishness.

Another theory is that the Emperor Constantine allowed his court jester to "rule" for one day a year as a joke, giving birth to a day of practical jokes and silliness.

In France and other French-speaking areas the day is "April Fish." Children are encouraged to try to attach a picture of a paper fish to the back of their friends without being caught.

News outlets work to present the best "news story" on this day of fools. Back in 1962, Swedish television announced that viewers could see broadcasts in color if they cut up a pair of tights and taped them on the screen. The tights supposedly bent light to extract the colors from the signal. Thousands of Swedes gave it a try. In 1980, the BBC reported that the historic clock face on Big Ben would be replaced with a digital display. They even announced a contest to win the old clock hands that received a few bids!
